QUAYLE TERMS LINCOLN "THE FIRST AMERICAN"

Bishop, Master Speaker, Holds Up Emancipator's Greatness of Heart and His American Origin as Making Him a More Noble Type Than Washington—America Coming Into Own.

It was again proven Monday evening that the American people never tire of hearing about Abraham Lincoln. When you add to that fact, that the speaker on this beloved subject was such as Bishop Quayle, and that he would consider Lincoln as "The First American," it is little wonder that a very large audience filled the High School Auditorium on Monday evening to greet the speaker brought here by the Kingston Chapter of the School Women's Club of the Hudson Valley. The Rev. P. C. Weyant of Trinity M. E. Church introduced Bishop Quayle, who, as far as most of the audience was concerned needed no introduction. This article can only be a report about and not of Bishop Quayle's lecture, for it would be impossible to reduce to printers' ink and paper the incessant rythmic flow of language, the flashes of illuminating wit, the tenderness and the great humanity of the speaker.

"The First American!" how would the good bishop prove that in the face of well known quotation regarding Washington, "First in peace, first in war, first in the hearts of his countrymen?" Well the first part of the address was given over to a quick survey of what led up to America, in order that the audience might know what would be required of the "First American," for the speaker later in his lecture summed up George Washington as an Englishman born on this side of the water, an aristocrat, one who owned slaves, a man of money who married a widow and got his children by annexation," certainly not a typical American.

The speaker introduced Lincoln as a statesman who "watched to see which way God went and then went after God; as a philanthropist who saw what God was doing, and doing like God, did God's things in God's way." Bishop Quayle said he was not going to praise Lincoln, for while one could praise little things and lie about them some, no one could praise big things for they were beyond praise or lying. He would speak of this man of sinewy majesty who would go on to eternity like light, whose face was sacred to the good folks now and forever, to his countrymen. He did.

But first he painted his tremendous background which might not be sparse or scant or small to project such a subject. To yesterday belonged Asia; Europe belongs to today; but tomorrow will claim America and Africa. Strange to say, at the recent arms conference we have had the spectacle of Asia of the past tense, Europe coming to be of the past tense, visiting America of the present and future tense and feeling at home. Great Asia has said all that it knew to say; Europe, that vast procession of continental performance whose arts and sciences have lighted the torches of today, has passed its great day; the day of its great men who provoked a glory that cannot die. The new continents are those of America and Africa, and Abraham Lincoln was born in America and died for Africa. Some one had well described this America as "An Island, the length and breadth of which no man knoweth," for America certainly outruns all dreams. The speaker told of visiting relatives in Europe, who accused him of lying about his country but he assured them that was impossible for he couldn't begin to lie up to it. Here the English speaking people have shown the world how to pass from kingdoms to republics; that great potency for mankind which continues to "speed up;" where President Harding and Secretary Hughes have brought to the human race the greatest service since Christ died for men. (Great applause).

While the lecturer could tell somewhat of America's future from its past, the future of that other new continent, Africa seemed all to stretch forward, impossible to even imagine in its possibilities for the human race's development. Then Bishop Quayle, graphically dramatically, picturesquely showed how the world had grown from the days of Columbus, and from the day of Columbus to the present times.

Here was found a new continent for God, seeding new people of God; new politics for its government; new personalities; in fact a new American.

He did not come from the established South or New England, but from the prairie lands, this Abraham Lincoln, the "new man," who was, to quote James Russell Lowell, "the new birth of this new soil, the first American."

Born in the south, reared in the north, we have never looked to ancestry to account for Abraham Lincoln, but to God.

Another new feature of this new land, Bishop Quayle counted to be the "American face," and that was Lincoln's face, as it is the face of "Uncle Sam," which is like a face of nobody that ever was but like real Americans. And the speaker remarked incidentally that when Americans are what they ought to be, they too look like Lincoln.

Lincoln, the speaker counted as a compound of prose and poetry; prose which is the weather and the stocks, the shortest line between two points, common sense, utilitarian, statesmanship; poetry which is "being in love," tenderness, humor, sorrow. He was indeed a poet who was the very essence of America. When Bishop Quayle so graphically and dramatically likened the incomparable Gettysburg address to a great oratorio, he expressed a thought that may well engage the minds and hearts of America's greatest musical composers of today.

Perhaps because he could so keenly appreciate the quality, Bishop Quayle dwelt at some length on Lincoln's sense of humor, one of the greatest assets of the American people. In his pity for those who cannot see a joke the speaker counted them as jokes themselves and hard ones to live with, which let them off easy. Yet it is an American characteristic to combine pathos with humor, a combination which in his greatest, deepest crises kept Lincoln's heart from breaking, as it has that of many another American.

Again Lincoln believed in man, that he was big, sublime, and like God he (Lincoln) was color blind, counting men as men regardless of color. Then, too he believed vastly in God, and the bishop found that the American people also believe in God. Lincoln was emphatically not a pacifist who believes in letting the wrong man live while the right man is killed, nor was he a militarist believing in war for the love of war. He was a Prohibitionist who believed in the American people as those who went to bed in the bed not under the bed, whose minds would not always be befogged with strong drink.

Who like Abraham Lincoln set people to heroism? Telling the story of a colored lad, a dozer in the sun, who risked his life to save some Union troops, the speaker told of the deed being concluded with the dying words, "Tell Marse Lincoln I done it for him!"

When Bishop Quayle brought his address to a close there could be no doubt, in the face of proven Americanism that Abraham Lincoln was indeed the "First American." Picturing a fire on a Missouri river steamboat, when all eyes and hearts turned to the heroic pilot with the cry, "Can you bring us to shore?" the pilot amidst flame and blinding smoke made reply, "I'll try, Sir," and finally with grating keel the fire eaten vessel touched land and all were saved—except the pilot who died at his post.

When from out the ship of state amidst bursting flame and convulsing smoke a voice cried out, "Can you bring us to shore?" a man six feet and four inches tall, with huge hands to grasp the helm, with a face as tender as a mother's and as strong as strength, held fast until with safe keel, the ship of state grated on the sands of Appomatox, when our pilot fell dead on the vessel's deck, and the world sobbed, as men and women and children gazed on that quiet face. Colored mammys and colored men looked into that coffin and sobbed, "He died for me," and holding their children that they, too, might see the beautiful face, sobbed again, "He died for you." And now men know that Abraham Lincoln, the first American was one of those sons of men for whom the stars step aside to let him pass, of whom we say, "Thy name and thy glory cling round all light places in golden clouds forever."

U. S. NOT TO TAKE PART AT GENOA

But Harding Is Hard Put to Find Way to Decline Without Offense to Europe as Well as Own Bankers and Trade Interests.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Adjournment of the armament conference brought the administration today squarely up against the task of making public a decision as to whether the United States will or will not participate in the Genoa economic conference next month.

Every indication points to non-participation by the United States, although administration spokesmen were less vigorous today than heretofore in assigning reasons why this government should not take part in the meeting. The matter has been discussed at several cabinet meetings, and will likely be given a thorough overhauling again at today's session.

Sentiment in the cabinet itself and in the senate is well nigh overwhelming against the government's taking a full part in the Genoa meeting. Even those who hold such widely divergent views of international policies as Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of the Interior A. B. Fall, one of the old senate "irreconcilables," find a common ground on which to stand with regard to the Genoa meeting. That ground is that the United States should stay out.

On the other hand, the White House has been subjected to considerable pressure from outside interests—such as international bankers, foreign trade interests and particularly those who advocate a resumption of trade relations with Soviet Russia, to accept the Genoa bid.

The final decision cannot be delayed. The Genoa meeting is scheduled to begin one month from tomorrow.

The administration has been informed that the United States can virtually write its own date for the conference, if assurances are forthcoming of full American participation. Sentiment in cabinet circles however, is strongly against even this.

"If we permit them to postpone the meeting on account of us," said one cabinet member to the International News Service, "then we tacitly commit ourselves to attend the conference at some later date regardless of the fact that no one knows at this time what conditions may be over there. The invitation should be politely and firmly declined."

The strong belief prevails in quarters close to the White House that President Harding is seeking a "graceful way" out of the Genoa situation without offending either the European governments who sponsor it, or the interests in this country which are strongly in favor of America's participating.

CORONATION OF PIUS XI SUNDAY

New Pope Will Aid In Europe's Reconstruction—American Cardinal Arrives With $2,000,000—Gasparri Secretary of State.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 7.—Pope Pius XI will not only continue the policy of the late Pope Benedict XV for reconciliation between the Vatican and the Italian state, but also will lend the powerful assistance of the papacy towards the reconstruction of war-torn Europe, it was learned today from an authoritative source.

That the selection of the former archbishop of Milan for the chair of St. Peter, was a popular one is attested by the flood of congratulatory messages that are pouring into the Vatican from all parts of the world.

The coronation will take place on Sunday, it being the tradition of the Roman church to conduct the coronation on the first holy day following the papal election in the conclave of cardinals.

The ceremonies will take place in St. Peter's and the Sistine Chapel.

There was keen disappointment that Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, arrived just too late to participate in the final ballot of the conclave. The American cardinal entered the conclave at 2:40 o'clock Monday afternoon and was received by Cardinal Gasparri. The conclave was not officially dissolved until four o'clock in the afternoon.

It was reported by the newspaper La Tribuna that Cardinal O'Connell brought $2,000,000 representing American contributions to St. Peters. Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia and Cardinal Begin of Quebec are due on Friday. They will be in time to take part in the coronation rites.

Cardinal Gasparri has been reappointed papal secretary of state. He has been regarded as the chief leader of the so-called "peace party" in the Sacred College which desires reconciliation with the Quirinal.

KING GEORGE LAUDS WASHINGTON PARLEY

Speech From Throne Opening Parliment Calls Irish Act and Ratification of New Treaties Chief Business—Hopes for Unemployment Relief From Genoa Conference.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 7.—Lauding the Washington conference and expressing the hope that it may be possible at the Genoa economic conference "to establish peace on a fair basis throughout Europe and remedy unemployment at home," King George today delivered a speech from the throne opening the new session of parliament.

The king urged an early settlement of the Irish issue, adding that "the final establishing of the Irish Free State as a partner in the British commonwealth of nations, is anxiously awaited."

The chief business of the house of commons in the present session is:

1—Enactment of a bill bringing the Irish Free State into official existence.

"During the past three months, the Washington conference has held continued sessions," said King George in his speech. "A treaty designed to maintain peace in the Pacific was signed. This treaty now awaits ratification.

"While this treaty replaces the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, I am happy to feel that the long-standing accord between the two countries, (Great Britain and Japan), will remain under the arrangement that has been concluded.

"At the same time, our relations with the United States enter a new and even closer phase of friendship.

"Also, an agreement has been reached on the question of disarmament and a treaty has been signed providing a large measure of relief for the burden of armaments. In all respects great results have been attained and the success of the conference, for which the whole world will owe a deep debt of gratitude to the initiative of the president of the United States, will be of the happiest augury for future international relations.

"The problem of securing reparations from Germany in a manner most conformable with the general interests engages the continuous consideration of my ministers and our allies. The German government has submitted proposals which are now under consideration."

The king expressed the hope that an early settlement would be reached on the Near East question by the British, French and Italian foreign ministers who are to discuss the issue in Paris. Furthermore, the king hoped that an agreement would be reached soon with France and Belgium to guard those nations against unprovoked attack.

As to Ireland, the king said:

"Articles of agreement have been signed by my ministers and the Irish delegation to which you have already signified your assent. They have now been approved by Ireland and the (Irish) provisional government, (at Dublin) is now engaged in taking over the administration of Ireland.

"The final establishing of the Irish Free State as a partner in the British commonwealth (of nations), is anxiously awaited throughout the world. You will be invited at an early date to consider measures which may be necessary to give effect to the agreement, and a bill of indemnity may be submitted to you."

The king announced that government estimates will entail retrenchment that may mean hardships but "in time of great industrial depression such as the world is passing through at present, it is a necessity that economy should be practised in every direction."

Discussing unemployment, the king said:

"The only remedy for this distressing situation is to be found in the appeasement of international rivalries and suspicions and the improvement in trade conditions. For these reasons I welcome the arrangements that are being made for the international (economic) conference at Genoa, at which I trust, it will be possible to establish peace on a fair basis throughout Europe and reach a settlement of many important questions arising from the pressing need of financial and economic reconstruction."

The king announced that proposals would be made for the reform of the house of lords and the creation of an international trade corporation to be nanced by the government.

Premier Lloyd-George is expected to address commons tonight on the Irish and Indian situations.

FOUR KILLED IN RICHMOND FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 7.—Four men were killed and fifteen persons were injured, some seriously, in a fire which started in the Lexington Hotel here early today and which was still burning at 9 o'clock.

At least twenty persons are missing and it is feared that other bodies will be found in the ruins.

Three of the dead have been identified. They are:

M. J. Fox, Williamsport, Pa.; Hiram F. Austin, Fincastle, Va.; A. Johnson, Charlottesville, Va.

The fire is one of the most disastrous which has occurred in the state of Virginia in a score of years. At 9 o'clock firemen were still pouring water into the blazing wreckage in efforts to prevent the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings.

The origin of the fire had not been determined this morning and police expressed the belief that it would be impossible to learn the cause of the blaze. The first alarm was turned in by a night clerk of the hotel shortly after four o'clock. The flames were spreading rapidly when firemen arrived and men and women who were asleep in the hotel rose terrified from their beds to find the blaze about them.

T. Johnson one of the identified dead, jumped for a net held by firemen. He missed the net by six feet, and was killed instantly. J. B Webz of Fincastle, Va., threw a mattress to the street and jumped. He also missed.

The hotel was a five-story brick building, located at Twelfth and Main streets, and had 250 rooms.

Police estimated the damage at $500,000.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

125 AT ACCORD POULTRY MEETING

The poultry institute held at Accord last Wednesday was attended by about 125 persons.

E. L. Chase, of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, opened the meeting with a talk on "Fertilizers, Mixed and Unmixed," after which he introduced to the audience Prof. James E. Rice, of the state poultry department, who gave an exceptionaly intersting talk on "The Present Poultry Situation and the Future Outlook," illustrating his points by a series of graphs. The most interesting of these was probably the first shown which gave a comparison of prices received for eggs and cost of feed for a period of years from January, 1912, to December, 1921.

An excellent chicken dinner was served at noon by the ladies of the Country Woman's Club.

The activities of the institute were resumed at 1:30 o'clock by Mr. Chase, who gave an interesting talk on the "Achievement of the National Farm Bureau." After finishing, Mr. Chase again introduced Prof. Rice to the audience and he took for his subject "How to Develop a High Producing Flock," maintaining that good stock, proper environment, proper feeding and close culling were the main essentials inducing high egg production.

From Prof. Rice's clear cut description of developing chicks, anyone with half an imagination could fairly see the birds on range scratching and digging for food.

During the afternoon twenty three new members were enrolled by the Accord Poultry Club. The fees received from members are used principally in securing speakers for the monthly meetings. For the March meeting Prof. Ogle, of the New York state poultry department has been secured.

Miss Delta Gardner has fully recovered from a slight attack of chicken pox.

Burton Gardner, who was injured while working on the ice, is improving. Also his father, John Gardner, who has been confined to the house for the past week with the grip, is able to be out again.

Was It Coincidence?

Next time you see your typewriter note that all the letters composing the word "typewriter" are found in the top row. It may have been only a coincidence, or the inventor of the standard keyboard may have arranged it so on purpose.—New York Evening Post.

STATE OF NEW YORK: SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF ULSTER.—ARTENA NORTHROP, Plaintiff, against

W. R. HARRISON HAS RESIGNED

A Member of Water Board—Mr. Harrison's Action Due to the Fact That Under the State Law No Public Official Can Sell Goods to the City.

William R. Harrison has filed his resignation as a member of the water board with Mayor W. P. Crane and it has been accepted. Mr. Harrison's resignation was due to the fact that under the state law no public official can sell goods to the city and his firm was desirous of obtaining a share of the city's business.

Shortly after Mayor Crane assumed office the first of the year he directed Corporation Counsel Walter S. Gill to mail to each of the city boards a memorandum covering that section of the state law, which has been in effect over a quarter of a century.

General City Law.

Section 3. City Officers not to be interested in contracts.

No member of the common council or any city shall, during the period for which he was elected, be capable of holding under the appointment or election of the common council, any office the emoluments of which are paid from the city treasury, or paid by fees or compensation directed to be paid by any act or ordinance of the common council, nor shall the mayor or any alderman, school commissioner or other public officer of any city be directly or indirectly interested either as principal, surety, or otherwise, in any contract, the expense or consideration whereof is payable out of the city treasury, but this section shall not affect the right to any fees or emoluments belonging to any officer of any city who violates any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof his office shall be vacant.

NURSING CLASS STARTS OFF BIG

Nearly 300 Sign Up For Preparatory Course and First Instruction Is Given—Next Meeting Tomorrow Night.

That the willingness of Kingston physicians to prepare for a possible epidemic of flu by instructing the people of the community how to care for the sick, and that without cost, is fully appreciated was overwhelmingly shown Monday evening at the first class for nursing held at the Kingston High School. No class room was large enough to begin to accommodate those who came to the class, over two hundred women remaining after enrolling while fully another hundred went into the Quayle lecture after signing up for the course. The class was held in the study hall downstairs, and those carrying on the work have been assured that tomorrow evening and thereafter while the course lasts, ample seating room will be provided for all who may wish to join the class. Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Dr. Mark O'Meara took the enrollment, and hereafter, just to see how many go through the course, there will be a roll call each evening.

Nor does any one by joining this class pledge themselves to do nursing outside their homes. That was not the idea. Remembering so vividly the awful experience of our first flu epidemic, when whole families were without proper care, the thought is to teach people how to care for sickness in their own homes. But at the end of the course which will probably cover ten lessons beginning with Wednesday's class, if there are those so situated as to be willing to help out their neighbors if necessary, their names will then be taken for future reference.

After the enrolling Monday evening the two physicians present gave a short talk on the general idea of nursing, cleanliness in the sick room, etc., and further gave instruction in how to take the pulse, count respiration, and take a patient's temperature. Owing to the lecture, it had not been expected that there would be so large an attendance, and equipment was inadequate, so at tomorrow evening's class, which will be held in the same place, beginning promptly at 7:30 o'clock, there will be a brief review of the work, with practical demonstrations as to the care of colds before the arrival of a physician. There will be more physicians in attendance, more clinical thermometers for use, etc., tomorrow evening. Also, Dr. Cranston will address the class, telling about eye, ear, nose and throat cold conditions, and there will be practical demonstrations. And it should be fully understood and appreciated that there cannot be too large an attendance to please the physicians undertaking the work, so all who have not yet enrolled and who can do so are asked to be present tomorrow evening at the study hall, the Kingston High School, promptly at 7:30 o'clock. It will be a good idea to carry with one a note book and pencil.

HOPE TO HAVE U. S. CARDINALS VOTE NEXT TIME.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 7.—Belief was prevalent in American clerical circles today that Pope Pius XI will change the papal constitution to permit a longer period of time to elapse between the death of a pope and the conclave of cardinals when a new pontiff is elected.

The change is suggested primarily in order to allow cardinals from the United States and Canada to participate in the election. Never yet has there been an American vote cast in a papal election.

It is believed that Cardinal O'Connell of Boston will remain in Rome until the amendment is proclaimed.

FRENCH PRESS BELIEVES NEW CARDINAL FRIENDLY.

Paris, Feb. 7.—The French press today generally approved the election of Cardinal Ratti to the Roman Catholic Papacy at Rome. Most of the newspapers consider the new pontiff a friend of France.

The opinion is expressed that "under the reign of Pope Pius XI, diplomacy and religion will go hand in hand, and that the Vatican will take a more active part in world affairs."

FARM-LABOR BLOC IN MAKING

Meeting At Chicago Is To Discuss Plans For Replacing Reactionaries in Congress With Men Friendly To Agriculture and Unions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Launching of a nation-wide farmer-labor political movement intended to wield a far-reaching and powerful influence in this year's congressional elections, in the purpose of the conference of labor and agricultural leaders to be held at Chicago February 20, it was disclosed today.

There is no thought of a "third party" movement in the minds of those behind the call for the conference, it was stated. It is their plan to "bore from within" instead from without, the Republican and Democratic parties in a systematic campaign to elect senators and representatives of progressive-liberal tendencies who can be depended upon to act in congress against the "reactionary forces."

The defeat of the so-called "reactionaries" of both the big parties who come up for re-election this year, is also planned, and a big "drive" is to be undertaken to change the complexion of the congressional delegations from a number of industrial and agricultural states from which increasing reports of economic, financial and industrial distress are now pouring in upon congress and are giving both conservative Republican and Democratic leaders grave concern.

The Chicago conference is not to be associated with that called recently by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, it was explained. Spokesmen for the railroad brotherhoods who are to take an active part in the Chicago conference, may attend the one summoned by Lewis, but those conversant with the organized labor situation, discount the idea that the brotherhoods are likely to be affiliated with the mine workers in the anthracite-bituminous coal strike which many regard as inevitable.

Nor is the Chicago conference to be anything like the famous farmer-labor party convention held in Chicago in 1920. The object of W. H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, and those associated with him in calling the Chicago conference is to employ "practical political methods" and to "fight the old line politicians of both the Republican and Democratic parties with their own fire," it was explained.

Formation of a national "farm-labor bloc" which will far exceed in weight and influence, the famous "agricultural bloc" while pursuing similar lines for the betterment of not only the farmer, but of organized labor, and, "of the people generally," is believed to be the ambition of those behind the new movement. By electing "the right kind of men" to congress, they believe the movement can be made a permanent success and carried into the next presidential campaign.

Agricultural conditions in Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and other middle-western states are reported to be extremely propitious for the launching of such a movement from the standpoint of the farmer alone. Serious industrial conditions in New England, West Virginia and elsewhere, are regarded as certain to lend strong support to it.

Karelian Revolt Crushed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 7.—The Karelian rebellion, which for some time threatened to precipitate a war between Russia and Finland, has been crushed on all fronts, according to a statement by Kameneff, the soviet leader. Central News quotes a Berlinske Tidende telegram from Helsingfors containing Kameneff's prediction that military operations will cease in a few days.

Non-Freezing Dynamite.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 7.—After many months of experimentation, the chemical and manufacturing forces of the Dupont company have perfected a dynamite with a double base of modified nitroglycerin and gun-cotton which is non-freezing, does not produce headache, and effects a saving of about one-third on the dollar.

Experience Best Teacher.

Mr. Garver is often invited to say a few words to the students whenever he visits the public schools. As he is an entirely self-made man, every boy who has listened to his stories is made aware that if it is not economy, it is industry that eventually lands one in the position of dignity and power, but a newcomer to town drew his conclusions from the depths of his personal experience. Mr. Garver had been addressing the school on the subject of the bee—its marvelous capacity for labor and accumulation. "And now," he said, in conclusion, "what does the busy bee teach us?" "To keep away from the hive," said the new boy, simply, but feelingly.—Harper's Magazine.

Art Treasures Restored.

The difficult task of finding a method for restoring ancient treasures in the British museum which are gradually showing signs of decay was entrusted sometime ago to Dr. Alexander Scott and he has announced that he had been successful in making such a discovery. A vapor of hydrogen peroxide which he used has worked wonders in bringing out the original colors and designs both in ancient manuscripts and on metal. A print, made for Emperor Maximilian in 1518 so treated was restored in all its wealth of detail. . . . Another specimen, believed to be a petrified block of wood, found under a 14-foot gunne deposit in Peru, when treated proved to be a delicate carving.

MOHICAN FIVE BEATS CELTICS AT SAUGERTIES.

The Mohican five of this city broke the winning streak of the Celtics of Saugerties in a fast game of basketball at the Orpheum Theater, Saugerties, on Monday evening. Although the game was close the Mohicans were in no real danger throughout the contest. The score at the end of the first half was 3 to 3. Right after the opening of the second half, Cramer broke loose and rolled up eight points in as many minutes, thus clinching the victory for the five from Kingston. Macholdt and McGrane played a close guard game, making many passes. Krom played a fine game at center, getting the jump on the larger man continuously. The scores follow:

New Pope's Democracy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 7.—Pope Pius XI who comes from the ranks of the "common people," is very democratic in his behaviour. According to the newspaper Il Messagero today, the new pontiff refused to permit the cardinals to kneel and kiss his foot when they approached him to pay their respects after his election.

Travel in Labrador.

There was still plenty to see at Nashuquan, and I took a long walk, chiefly in stunted spruces and in the bog—the barrens or tundras of Labrador—which occupies so much of the country in the sub Arctic and Arctic zones. Audubon says in his journal: "To tread over the spongy moss of Labrador is a task beyond conception until tried; at every step the foot sinks in a deep, soft cushion which closes over it and it requires a good deal of exertion to pull it up again. Where this moss happens to cover a marsh, then you sink a couple of feet deep every step you take. To reach bare rock is delightful and quite a relief." In another place he says: "We crossed a savannah of many miles in extent; in many places the soil seemed to wave under us, and we expected at each step to go through the superficial moss cover." These descriptions are not at all overdrawn. I should compare the moss to that of walking in deep wet snow.—Charles Wendell Townsend.

England's Biggest Forest.

To the naturalist, artist and the general lover of nature, the new forest possesses special charms that perhaps surpass any other part of the land. It is a portion of primeval England, dating back to the conquest, when it was stated, William I ordained the forest to be formed and in so doing laid waste whole villages, hamlets and other properties, including more than 30 churches, ranging more than 70 miles of country. Until the reign of William III, the Christian Science Monitor says, the forest remained under natural growth, when the naval demand for oak timber for ship building was so great that an act came into force to inclose 6,000 acres for the production of timber. These inclosures and others of more recent date are scattered over the forest and form some of the most beautiful and interesting of the woodland scenery.

BRIDGE PROBLEMS.

With the Rondout bridge completed and the promise that the road connecting the bridge with the state road through Port Ewen will be finished this spring; this will prove to be one of the heaviest travelled thoroughfares leading into Kingston. It is said that no provision has been made for the building of sidewalks along this new piece of road, and if that be true it would seem that the proper authorities should awaken to the necessity of having walks built, and plan to take care of the situation that will exist when the bridge and the road are thrown open to public travel. There is no question that the road and bridge will be used by thousands of pedestrians and unless walks are provided there is grave danger that serious accidents will occur along that stretch of road.

Another problem that must be met and solved is that of properly policing not only the bridge but the connecting road. The road winds through an isolated district, and at night there is grave danger that hold-up men will find it a profitable territory to work. At the present time there are many who are using the bridge to cross from one side of the creek to the other, and something should be done at once by the proper authorities to afford pedestrians police protection. When the bridge and road are thrown open to traffic it will be necessary to have traffic officers on duty on both sides of the bridge.

The city line ends at the center of the bridge and the Kingston police department is expected to be ready to have traffic officers on duty at that point when the proper time arrives. There is just as much necessity for police protection on the Esopus side of the creek, and the problem should receive immediate attention.

The electric lighting equipment has been installed on the bridge, but it is understood that no provision has been made as yet to pay for the current. Kingston authorities will, if necessary, pay for half of the bridge lighting, and it will be necessary for the town authorities to take steps to provide for the lighting of the other half of the bridge and the connecting road.

As the bridge and road are part of the state highway system it may be possible to induce the state to furnish both police and lighting. If that cannot be done it will cast a heavy burden on the taxpayers of the town of Esopus.

The time to solve these problems is now before the bridge and road are thrown open to traffic. They are important questions that have to be met and solved. Steps should be taken at once to ascertin if the state will not police and light the bridge, and if not provision should be made by the proper local authorities to do so.

ENGLISH AND LATIN.

In hurrying America, where much is done that in a few years calls for doing, there will be an unfamiliar sound in the announcement that the Oxford Dictionary, begun 43 years ago, is not yet quite ready for publication in full. A work representing such long and patient labor by scholars ought and no doubt will contain complete information about every word in our language which has been enriched from so many sources. It may be taken for granted that the exhaustive workers on the Oxford Dictionary have found abundant confirmation of the American professor's quoted saying that the lexicons of Europe are the trophies of Greece and Rome.

The importance of this study of derivations seems to become more widely recognized in American schools. We read, for example, of forthcoming experiments in high schools to determine the value of Latin in increasing a student's knowledge of English words. "One class will include Latin beginners who are not taught derivatives; one will be of beginners in which definite derivative study is given regularly; one of non-Latin pupils having regular work in English etymology, and another without such regular work. It is proposed to rate these four classes by intelligence tests and by spelling tests in the knowledge of English words; and as the work proceeds the growth of each pupil will be tested in English vocabulary." Undoubtedly it will be shown that students of Latin, of equal average intelligence, acquire a richer and more varied English vocabulary.

Instead of being ruined by prohibition, as it expected, the grape and raisin industry of California now pockets $130 a ton where formerly it realized only $15 to $25 a ton. A new shipping center created by the rush of business has been gratefully named Volstead.

3. Are the common blue jays we have down South harmful, and should they be killed?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. I was surprised to see you print the statement,—in giving a list of poisonous snakes of the South,—that the king snake is venemous. This is contrary to my experience.

We are glad to print this comment. On getting it we hunted up our original pencilled notes on the letter asking for names of southern venomous snakes, and the short list was correctly ended "and copperheads." A typing mischance turned this to "king snake." The king snake is a constrictor in its eating habit, crushing, not poisoning its prey. It is harmless to man, and a help to agriculture, taking many small rodents for prey.

2. Was the Star of Bethlehem a real star?

A real astronomical occurrence of some sort, without doubt, but exactly what, nobody knows positively. It has been supposed to have been a meteor, a comet come into visibility; a conjunction of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars forming a bright light in the heavens; or possibly really a star newly visible. Astronomers, however, do not consider that any one of these explanations fits the Bible account of the star's leading travelers from the East.

3. What is Gonus, or Goones, a sea bird?

We printed this question in October, replying that we could not find any word approaching Goones. It does not appear in our edition of Webster's Unabridged, or in the Indexes of the many volumes on ornithology we examined. But accidentally we come upon it in the text of Bailey's Handbook of the Birds of the Western U. S., as locally applied by fishermen to the blackfooted albatross, found off the Pacific coast from southern California to Alaska.

STILL CUTTING ICE ON RIVER

Cutting and storing the Hudson river ice crop is still under way and the Knickerbocker Ice Company is busy at Turkey Point, Flatbush and Esopus, and with weather conditions favorable expects to complete the harvest this week. With the ice harvested at High Hook, East Kingston and South Rondout the company will have about 130,000 tons of ice in the six houses.

Owing to the fact that the ice fields were protected by a covering of snow the ice was not injured by the February thaw of the past day or so, or by the rain storm of Monday.

Monday night the weather tightened up somewhat and the puddles of water that had formed on sidewalks and roads became pools of ice this morning.

The local retail ice dealers have all completed their ice harvesting and have filled their houses with ice of exceptionally fine quality.

NEW WOMAN IN TAYLOR MURDER

Leading Feminine Screen Star, Drug Addict and One of Many Women in Director's Life Now Suspected of Having Shot Him After Being Jilted—Swamp of Scandal Uncovered.

(By Wallace Smith. Copyright 1922, by I. N. S.)

(Copyright 1922, by Chicago Evening American.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Feb. 7.—Out of the drug-frenzied setting of Hollywood's feverish "dope" parties, the slim, cool figure of one of filmdom's leading actresses stepped today to lead police on a new trail in the hunt for the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, slain film director, and man of mystery.

She slipped from the sordid background as she had left a score of times the scenes of mad revelry—to make her way under the cloak of night to the home of the man who was killed. He was her lover.

One of the most noted of the screen's favorites—and one of the pitiful number who have become thralls of the dope ring—the police led by new, spectacular developments, believe that the film beauty may be the assassin.

Her motive, the police informant declared, was a strange infatuation for the quiet, well-mannered director turned to burning rage by her jealousy of other women known to have visited the Alvarado street home—once considered the quarters for a recluse bachelor and now known as the abode of secret love.

Detectives directed their search toward the actress following the stories of neighbors of the Taylor home who told of her visits in the early hours of the morning. These tales were verified in the half whispers that sounded in the haunts of the drug peddlers among whom the secrets of the stars that shine on the celluloid firmament, are every day gossip. They know it as a part of their infamous trade.

So impressed were the authorities with the sight of the will o' the wisp across the swamp of scandal and gossip revealed with Taylor's killing, that they were ready to construct their entire theory of the crime, including the time it was done.

Generally it was accepted that Taylor was shot an hour after Mabel Normand had ended her visit with the director, a visit enlivened by a discussion of classic literature and gin cocktails. The time was placed about 8:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Now it is believed that Taylor may have been shot down by the beauty of the screen at an hour after midnight.

The associations of Taylor and the woman were mildly known to Hollywood filmdom. That is what may be called their daylight acquaintance. Hollywood did not even raise its eyebrows. There had been too many women in Taylor's life.

They did not know about her early morning visits to Alvarado street. They might have wondered why she, looked upon as a queen of the delirious revels where ether and cocaine were blended with morphine and opium, left these "parties" at an hour considered early in Hollywood. But they were used to strange behaviours.

There was a bit of gossip when it was learned that the young woman, in a burst of drug-inspired confidence, had boasted that she intended to marry "Bill" Taylor.

"He's mine," she said, "and he knows it."

Hollywood smiled tolerantly.

"There must be something about Bill Taylor," it said.

On New Year's eve and far into New Year's day the advent of the fresh year was hailed by Hollywood with a wild and drunken shout. Old timers hereabouts say that the celebration in its wildness surpassed anything ever seen in these parts. Out of it have since grown twenty scandals and domestic shipwrecks.

Taylor and the woman who boasted that she would marry him, quarreled violently at the "party" they attended. So violently that they separated on the spot. Half crazed with the drug she had taken, the woman ran in a rage to her car and drove to her home. In the morning, according to the dope peddlers—remember that was a part of their trade—she repented and telephoned Taylor.

Taylor, when the woman left, seemed turned to a man of stone. At last he shook himself together, formally bade farewell to the others of the party and stalked to his car. When he reached home, according to the stories the police heard from the dens of the dope peddlers, he broke down and wept. When daylight came he was off on one of his solitary walks into the foothills.

He returned just before the woman telephoned. He refused to go to the telephone when he learned who it was. Later it was stated, she made several efforts at reconciliation.

But Taylor was through with her. There had been other women in his life. There still were. He was seen in their company, in public. With them he went to "parties" in private studios; friends of the jilted actress sought to confront her with gossip about Taylor's carrying on with other women.

Then came the night of Taylor's death—the night that Mabel Normand, once reported engaged to him, visited Alvarado street. That night, as they say in movie subtitles, the film queen was again at a "dope party," morose and embittered, according to police information. To her came one of her consoling friends.

"What a fine dumb-bell you are to be crying about that fellow," she said. "Why, he's got a woman in his house right now."

"That's a lie," cried the star.

"All right," said the other, "but if I wanted to I could tell you her name."

For more than a hour according to the information given to the police, the young woman who had boasted she would marry Taylor, brooded. Then, without a word to anyone, she left. The police believe it possible that this woman, with the fumes of the drug fanning jealousy to flame, armed herself and went to the house of Taylor ready to demand his love and to kill him if he refused. And it was upon this theory that they were at work today.

FIFTH BINNEWATER.

Fifth Binnewater, Feb. 6.—Lela Deitz has been very sick, but is better now and will soon be back to school.

The ice harvest is the best this season that it has been in years. All clear ice with very little snow and only two days idle in a month. Ice should be very plentiful and much cheaper this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Rob Freer and daughter, Ruth, of Marbletown are stopping with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Freer, during ice season, as Mr. Freer is working at stowing ice in the cars.

Bert Pine of Kingston was confined two days with illness at the home of William Eselby of this place. He is again back to work in Kingston, much improved.

A farewell party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Fritz Eliert of Fourth Binnewater on Saturday night, January 28. Because of the sale of the farm, they are to move in the near future and the community unites in hoping that they may find a residence in our neighborhood, since they have always proved such good neighbors. There was a good attendance at the party, where dancing and singing were enjoyed by all. Lunch was served at midnight and all said good night soon after, voting the Ellerts royal entertainers.

A business meeting was held Tuesday night, January 25, at the home of Lewis Lasher for the purpose of establishing an athletic club, and officers were elected and plans made for same. The officers elected were Jacob Freer, president; Burton Davis, secretary; John Clark, treasurer; and Charles Kneen, trainer. The meetings are to be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month. The name for club is Mercury Athletic Club and it is hoped by all that it will prove a success because our boys who are growing up will need it and those who are old enough to be members can, if they will, make it a success.

Benson Lyons of Kingston is spending the ice season with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Justice Lyons.

Mrs. Lewis Lasher is very ill at this writing.

Mrs. William Storey is still sick, much to the disappointment of all who know her. She does not improve as fast as we wish.

A church social was held Tuesday night, January 31, at the chapel, at which time a short program was given, afterwards several contests were held. The contestants were Hurley against Binnewater. Cracker eating contest was won by Hurley. Passing clothes pins by Binnewater, "Puppies Fly" by Hurley and a dressing contest was won by a young man from Hurley and Katheryn Deitz. A cake was raffled by Floyd Deitz. Cake and coffee were served free. Admission was paid this way: Each person present was given a tiny apron with two pockets and the number of inches waist measure was to be paid in cents—in apron pocket. The admission was rather high for a few present. Our minister, Mr. French, who comes from Hurley, did all he could to make the evening a success, which it certainly was. The attendance was also good.

We are all glad to know that little Miss Christina Castor is improving so nicely.

GLASCO.

Glasco, Feb. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Burhans are spending a week in Brooklyn.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Prest Friday, February 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Robison of Saugerties spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Weeks.

Clayton Stalter is home, having been discharged from the army the past week.

Mrs. John Vorhauer, Jr., was given a surprise party Wednesday evening by the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church, it being Mrs. Vorhauer's birthday. About 17 were present. A jolly time and delicious refreshments were enjoyed by all.

Electric lights have been installed in the basement of the Methodist Church

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SAMMY'S CLOWN

There was a little boy named Sammy who had wanted to join the circus. He had decided against it because he had discovered that the circus was not all fun and playing but that it was studying and practicing and hard, hard work.

He didn't want to feel that belonging to the circus was work. He would rather be one of the audience—as he had always been—who simply thought of the circus people as being clever and funny naturally.

Sammy had a little cousin whose name was Sammy, too. Stranger than that much stranger than that was the fact that little Cousin Sammy too had always wanted to join the circus and had always wanted to be a clown.

Now the circus went to the town where Sammy's cousin lived soon after it had been to the town where the first Sammy lived.

This Sammy too found that there were hard things about the circus but still he wanted to join and he had already made friends with a very nice clown.

During the afternoon when the circus was going on his longing to be a part of it became stronger and stronger. What if there were some things about it he didn't like? One could always find things about every thing that weren't particularly fine.

Oh, he would be such a fine little clown. It would be very amusing to have a little clown—and he would play a little cornet too. It would be a very jolly life.

It was after the afternoon performance that he and his clown friend had a talk.

"Of course you can join the circus if you want to do so," the clown told him. "We'd be delighted to have you. And you can play in the band too."

"Of course you couldn't do that for quite a time. You would have to learn first and you would have to practice for quite a long time before you would be able to do anything in public."

"But you make mistakes," Sammy said. "Surely you don't have to practice?"

"We don't eh?" the clown said, as he laughed. "My dear young man (and Sammy felt most important) we have to know how to play or we wouldn't be able to make funny mistakes. We can't have stupid mistakes—we have to make really funny mistakes and we have to know how to play in order to do that."

Sammy looked amazed. "Well," he said, "I don't suppose I'd have to practice hard, and then too it would be fun to always be making people laugh."

"I think that too," the clown said, "except when I have the toothache. I must admit I don't enjoy hearing them laugh then. One day I had an awful toothache. I could hardly bear the pain. I just called out to the people too and I said, 'How dare you laugh at me when I have an ulcerated tooth?' And they laughed still harder. They thought it was a joke. And the same thing happened when I stubbed my toe."

Sammy was allowed to stay behind the scenes during the evening performance. He did not want to be seen by any of his companions in the tent. And he felt it would be so exciting back of the scenes. But as each performer came out after each act was over there was nothing but a hurrying and a scurrying to get ready to pack up and go to the next place.

"Aren't you going to bed first?" Sammy asked. And then he realized what a foolish question he had asked. For, of course, the circus always left town the same night. "Will you have a rest tomorrow to make up for traveling tonight?" Sammy asked. He was feeling very sleepy.

"Well rest on the train," he was told, "but we will have to get up earlier tomorrow morning than we did this morning. Oh, well, it's the good old circus life."

"The good old circus life," Sammy said to himself as he rushed away when no one was looking. "Practising, jokes when you're sick, and traveling every night—and unpacking every morning. I guess I'll be in the audience for awhile longer."

No one ever knew that Sammy had thought of running away that day—no one except the clown and when the clown saw that Sammy was no longer with them, he said to himself,

"I'm not surprised. I'm not surprised at all. And after all—why should he work so hard until he has to do so?"

After you have been two weeks in the house with one of those terrible handy men that ask their wives to be sure and wipe between the tines of the forks and know just how much raising bread ought to have and how to hang out a wash so each piece will get the best sun it's a real joy to get back to the ordinary kind of man.

WHAT TO HAVE FOR DINNER

As a beginning for any little company dinner a cocktail of various fruits is always acceptable.

Grapefruit Cocktail. — Make grapefruit baskets by cutting a small handle through to the center of a grapefruit, scoop out the pulp and reserve for the filling. Take the grapefruit pulp, one orange, a little pineapple diced. Mix well and add a sirup made by using the fruit juice and sugar cooked together and cooled. Fill the shells and garnish the top of each handle with a sprig of mint thrust through the top of the handle, or a flower may be used for decoration.

White Cookies.—Take one-half cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, two well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, flour to make a soft dough to roll, adding two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with vanilla. The recipe makes three dozen cookies.

Dinner Cheese.—Put through a meat grinder one-half cupful of stuffed olives, add to one cream cheese and when well blended add to two cupfuls of grated American cheese. Season well with salt, roll in the form of a long roll. Place on a doiley-covered plate and decorate with sliced stuffed olives. Place a cheese knife on the plate and let each serve himself.

Grapefruit Jelly and Cheese.—The grapefruit juice not used in the cocktail may be used the next day by thickening it with a little gelatin and when firm cut in small cubes and serve with balls of well-seasoned cottage cheese.

Salmon Salad.—Mix together one and one-half cupfuls of salmon flaked with one-half cupful of celery, two tablespoonfuls of chopped green pepper, one small onion and salt and pepper to taste. Peel two tomatoes and cut them into dice and mix with the salad, or cut them in quarters and use as a garnish. Arrange on a bed of lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise.

A Flying Furnace

The average meteor when first seen is about 80 miles above the surface of the earth, and disappears from view at 30 miles. Thus, it travels 50 miles before the atmospheric friction burns it up. This friction, it is reckoned, raises it to a temperature of something like 3,000,000 degrees.

Substitute for Glass.

A new substitute for glass or for lacquer has been invented in Germany. It can be cut with shears or with a knife and when heated to more than 100 degrees Centigrade, it forms a kneadable mass which resumes its previous hard state on cooling. It is known as "cellon."

Two Jugular Veins

There are two jugular veins on each side of the neck. The external jugular veins are just beneath the skin and convey the blood from the external portions of the head and neck to the heart, while the internal jugular veins carry the blood from the lateral sinus to the heart.

Blinded Goldfish

The naturalist Ogneff kept goldfish for three years in absolute darkness, taking care to give them plenty of room and plenty of food. The result was total blindness, even the rods and cones of the retina disappeared.

Coconuts as Money.

Coconuts are the common form of exchange among the natives of the Nicobars. For instance a box of matches is worth 20 coconuts, while for needles the price is one coconut each.

Amateur Farmer's Error.

One reason why a town man sometimes fails at farming is because he thinks more of the picturesque woods and rocks on his place than of the ground that's suitable for corn.

Music.

We cannot imagine a complete education of man without music.—Jean Paul Richter.

ANTI-STRIKE BILL IS INTRODUCED

Duell's Measure Calls For Adjudication of Industrial Disputes By Three Justices of Supreme Court.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 7.—The industrial relations bill, prepared by the New York board of trade and transportation, was introduced today by Senator Duell, of Westchester county. It provides that disputes between labor and employers, that seriously affect the public, are to be determined by the industrial relations term of the supreme court, which may be convened by the governor on request or on his own initiative.

The term is to consist of three justices of the supreme court designated by the governor.

Senator Duell said that the bill sought to correct the errors made in the laws creating industrial relations courts in Kansas and Canada.

"The working man will lose none of his rights in demanding increased pay," he said. "The bill has for its object the settlement of industrial disputes. It means the application of the principle of cooperation in place of discord and the protection of the public interest. I am confident that the long suffering public is sick and tired of being the victim of industrial disputes. It is the public which in most instances is inconvenienced and suffers and pays."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 7.—The stock market again showed a strong tone at the beginning of business today. U. S. Steel showed a gain of ¼ at 87⅛ and Baldwin Locomotive rose ⅜ to 102⅝. Martin Parry was in demand, moving up 1 point to 34, and Davison Chemical showed a gain of ½ at 62. Great Northern Ore advanced 1½ to 36¼. Mexican Petroleum rose ½ to 115⅝. Rock Island showed a gain of ⅝ at 33⅞ and Northwestern rose ½ higher at 66⅝.

There was no important change in the market conditions through the first hour, the chief features being advances in many specialties and industrial groups. Some of the railroad stocks that were strong in the first fifteen minutes reacted before the end of the first hour, and weakness was shown in the Pierce Arrow issues, the common falling 1⅜ to 13¾ and the preferred dropping 2 points to 29½. The sugar stocks made good gains. Mexican Petroleum was one of the strong features, advancing 1½ to 117⅝.

The market moved in an irregular manner during the afternoon. Baldwin Locomotive from 103⅞, fell to 102¼; Food Products following the announcement of the bankruptcy application fell from 5 to 3⅝. Interborough preferred dropped 1⅜ to 7⅛. Studebaker and Chandler were in demand, the former crossing 95 and the latter 65.

The market closed heavy; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

Damage Done by Wild Beasts.

Wolves are the chief offenders in doing injury to herds and flocks, though the coyote is a good second. The damage inflicted by single specimens of the wolf tribe is surprising. The famous Custer wolf that operated in the vicinity of Custer, South Dakota for six or seven years, killed $25,000 worth of cattle and escaped for many years, though there was a bounty of $500 on his head. A pack of eight wolves destroyed $20,000 worth of calves, pigs and sheep in and around the Arkansas national forest.

His Only Grievance.

"Who is the indignant caller?" "One of our prominent citizens," said the editor of the Toadvine Clarion, "who gave an interview to our local reporter and expressly stipulated that his name must not appear in print." "Then it evidently got into the paper." "Yes, and he's mad because it was spelled wrong."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Albany, Feb. 7.—The McGinnies bill carrying out Governor Miller's recommendations that the state attorney general represent the public at the telephone rate hearings before the public service commission, was passed by the assembly today by a vote of 101 to 21. It carries a $25,000 appropriation.

Munchausen.

Baron von Muncnausen—the Germans spell it Munchhausen—was a Hanoverian nobleman, a soldier and adventurer and a teller of tales of marvelous that even the most credulous ignoramus would refuse to believe them. Certain German critics aver that there never was such a person as the mendacious baron. The true author, they maintain, was one Rudolph Erich Raspe, a librarian, who after committing a robbery at Cassel ran away to London in 1775, where he wrote "The Adventures of Baron Munchhausen," pretending that he had collected and arranged the original manuscript. It was a time when wild and vivid flights of the imagination were mistaken for genius, and there was no effort made to give fiction the semblance of truth, so the adventures were read with avidity, and the word Munchausen became the synonym for palpable falsehood.

What Makes You Shiver?

Just as heat leads to a feeling of drowsiness, cold has the effect of exciting and disturbing the nervous system. The muscles which move various parts of the body are acted upon in such a way that they cause the limbs to vibrate, and this, repeated many times, produces the sensation which we recognize as a "shiver." This is really a mild variety of spasm caused by the cold, in much the same way that some poisons produce muscular spasms which cannot be controlled. Like most things which are perfectly natural, shivering produced by cold has its useful function, for it warns us that it is time for us to do something to restore the normal amount of heat, lest we "catch cold" or are affected in some other way by the unusual absence of warmth.

Various Names for Same Place.

Spain, whose people have done so large a share of naming of new world places, is Spagna to the Italians, Espagne to the French, and Espana to the Spanish themselves. The French call this country Etats-Unis, but Vereinigte Staaten is the German translation of the same idea. The "New" in the name of our chief metropolis is generally retained in its American form by the French and Germans, but translated by the Spanish and Italians The former speak of Nueva York. The Mediterranean sea, the Mare Internum of the Latins, is variously translated. The Germans express the same idea in Mittellaendisches Meer.

One Million Days Ago.

Scientists are fond of telling us of things which happened ten, twenty or thirty million years ago, but does anybody realize what these immense periods of time mean? asks a writer in London Tit-Bits. What was happening a million days ago? If you make a simple calculation, you will find that a million days ago is 2,738 years; a million days ago, about the year 800 B. C., Rome had not been built, King Uzziah was reigning at Jerusalem, and 200 years were to elapse before the Jews went into captivity in Babylon. Of what happened a million weeks ago we know nothing except what we can deduce from prehistoric bones, implements and weapons!

Walter Gray's Rival

By CLAIRE SMITH

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Walter Gray had never understood the depth of a woman's love until he was engaged to Molly Purvis. There was some discrepancy in their ages—he was thirty and she only twenty-one; it was not enough to count, but enough to make a difference in their outlook upon life. Molly was a sprite—lively, mischievous, and merry—while Walter was serious beyond his years.

Perhaps an unhappy love affair in his earlier days was now having its wholesome reaction.

He soon learned that Molly's lightness of manner only served to conceal a depth of nature of which he had never believed any woman to be capable. Their love was mutual and almost immediate. Their engagement was warmly welcomed on both sides of the family.

"Walter," said Mollie one day, "did I ever tell you about my chum, Elsie Manton? She was at school with me, you know. Her brother and she are coming to pay us a week's visit. He used to admire me a good deal," continued Molly.

Walter took her by the arms

"And you admired him?" he demanded sternly.

"Well, a little." Molly confessed. "But of course not since I have loved you."

That was all Walter could get out of her.

Elsie arrived alone, however. Her brother, who had been detained on business, was to arrive the following day. Elsie proved to be even more vivacious than Molly. The girls were so absorbed in their discussion of the good times they had had together that Walter found himself out in the cold.

The wedding day had already been set, and Walter spent every evening at Molly's house. Paul Manton was to arrive the following evening, and Molly had insisted that Walter be there to welcome him.

The girls being still as engrossed with each other as ever, Walter had retired to the library, where he awaited Paul Manton's arrival. When at last the front door bell rang it took him a full minute to recover his equanimity, and by the time he had stepped into the hall he saw the visitor on the threshold.

He saw him enter, and Molly go out to meet him. Then he saw him open his arms and fold the girl in them. And suddenly he bent his head and kissed her, and Molly began to—to giggle.

Hatless, coatless, Walter left the house. He must have walked half way to the station when a hack came crawling up the road. In it sat a young man, nursing a suit-case on his knee. Walter stared at him in astonishment. It was Paul Manton. He knew him by the photograph Elsie had shown him.

Bewildered, Walter turned homeward. His brain was dizzy and he could not understand the situation at all. If Paul arrived and kissed Molly, how could he now be coming up the hill in a hack? But his sense of indignation was too strong to permit his mind to work clearly. He reached his home and—

And on the step stood Molly, hatless and wrapless, and crying desperately. She turned as he approached and ran to him and threw her arms round him.

"Walter!" she sobbed. Listen to me It was Elsie. I didn't know until she kissed me."

"What do you mean?" demanded Walter, holding her at arm's length and looking into her woeful, tear-stained face.

"It was a trick of Elsie's to surprise me and make you jealous," Molly faltered. "It was your overcoat and hat. Didn't you see that? She put them on inside and went outside and then rang the bell and came in. I thought it was Paul until—until she kissed me."

A light dawned upon Walter's bewildered brain. Ashamed and humiliated, he stood there, while Molly's arms wound themselves lovingly about his neck again.

"Molly," said Walter, "I've been a confounded fool. I'll believe in you always after this lesson."

New and Interesting Room.

A new room which has been added to some of the newer house plans is the "hobby" room. It is a studio and work room, usually planned next to the bedroom. There the owner can keep the materials needed for his work at home. In this room he is undisturbed by other members of the household while he is at work. Things may be left in some disorder there without interfering with the artistic sensibilities of visitors or members of the family. The room need not be large, in fact it is better if it is not too large. It is one room which bespeaks the individual's taste. It caters to the long felt need for an hour of work or thought which is undisturbed.

Rural Strategy.

"What's the idea of putting up the big sign reading, '40 Miles to the City?'"

"That's a little idea of mine," said Constable Perkins of Chiggersville. "When a motorist bound for the city reads that sign he just naturally wants to see if he can't make the last lap inside of an hour. I stand down the road a piece and nab him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

TO NAME TWO U. S. CARDINALS

Is Expected To Be One of New Pope's First Acts—Glennon, Hanna and Hayes Mentioned.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Creation of two new American cardinals is expected to be one of the first ecclesiastical acts of Pope Pius XI, the new Roman Catholic pontiff. In hierarchical circles here today, the expectation was freely expressed that an early consistory of the Sacred College would be called at Rome for the express purpose of naming at least ten candidates for the red hat.

Ranks of the cardinals have become greatly thinned due to the failure of the late Pope Benedict to call a sacred consistory since nearly a year ago and because of the deaths of several of the high priests of the church, notably those of Cardinal Ferrari of Milan, Cardinal Santos of Seville; Cardinal Marini and Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore.

It is highly probable, it was said in Catholic quarters, that the new pontiff may call a sacred consistory following his coronation, due to the presence in Rome of the majority of the cardinals.

Stated for the red hat among the prelates of the church in the United States, and whose names have been repeatedly in the forefront as candidates for the highest order of the Roman Church, it was said, are: the Most Rev. Archbishop John Joseph Glennon of St. Louis, Mo., the Most Rev. Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of San Francisco, and Metropolitan of the Pacific coast; the Most Rev. Patrick J. Hayes of New York city. The names of Archbishop George W. Mundelein of Chicago and of Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, although recurring frequently in circles familiar with the plans and workings of the Catholic church in America, are not considered likely candidates at this time.

Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis is outranked in point of seniority by Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer of Milwaukee, Wis., who was consecrated in 1892 while Archbishop Glennon was consecrated in 1896. Ranking after Archbishop Glennon is Archbishop Alexander Christie of Portland, Ore. The senior bishop in the United States is the Right Rev. M. F. Burke of St. Joseph, Mo., who was consecrated in 1886.

No doubt is entertained in hierarchial circles as to the creation as cardinal, of the apostolic delegate to the United States, Archbishop Giovanni Bonzano.

BURN HOLLYWOOD, SAYS FRANK MAYO

Is Pernicious Influence—Magnates Say It is Necessary And Point To "Morality Clauses" In Contracts.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 7.—"Burn it up! The Hollywood film colony is a pernicious influence. Scatter it, abolish it—something ought to be done. Burn it up—I say."

Frank Mayo, screen and stage star and a resident of Hollywood as a member of the Universal Company, made this statement here today.

"If I express myself bitterly, I am expressing what every self-respecting actor in Hollywood feels," said Mayo. "The best thing that could happen to moving pictures would be to abolish the Hollywood colony. I am not saying it's rampant with immorality and degeneracy, for that's not true, but it is a pernicious influence.

"One thing wrong is that there are no outside diversions. The result is everyone is bored to death. All you hear is pictures, pictures, until you are almost frantic.

"Send culture to Hollywood—I'd say to the managers, but I'm afraid there's no use. You don't see more than three or four moving picture actors at the concerts we do get.

"The only bright spots are homes of earnest intelligent artists, like Nazimova, Clara Kimball Young and others who can discuss books and music. I could name some who may not be overburdened with brains but at least are striving to improve themselves. And I want to say that one of the finest and most intellectual in the colony is Mabel Normand. It's a shame her name should be mentioned in connection with this Taylor murder.

"Why don't we actors who have respect for our art and ourselves get together and demand a 'clean up' of the undesirables. What good would that do? You forget that some of the biggest stars in the business are among the undesirables. They have been raised to positions for which they are not fitted. They receive enormous salaries. They haven't the brains or desire to improve themselves and they spend their money like drunken sailors. They are trying always to buy new sensations, bored to death with Hollywood and themselves. And their actions bring opprobrium on every actor in the business. They make us all suffer. It isn't fair and I for one resent it."

Adolph Zukor, head of the Famous Players, disapproving of the suggestion to scatter the Hollywood colony, defended it.

"There's no more immorality in the Hollywood colony than in the New York stock exchange," said the film magnate.

"Isolated cases of scandal in Hollywood are taken and magnified. That's because the film actors are more familiar to the public than any other class of people. I suppose disgraceful things happen in Hollywood but they happen among men who are members of the New York stock exchange and they happen in other groups.

"Even if we were so inclined, it would be impossible to abolish Hollywood colony and scatter the actors in other sections of the country. In the first place, climatic conditions make it necessary to maintain studios there. Our company and other companies have millions of dollars invested there and it would mean enormous loss to move the colony. Wherever we moved, the actors, they would be bound to gather together in colonies.

"Because of their peculiar closeness to the public, individual film stars must watch their step, but I am not pessimistic about the situation. The movies haven't gone to the dogs, and they are not going to the dogs."

Carl Laemmle, pioneer producer and head of the Universal Film Company advocated "morality" clauses in moving picture contracts to keep stars "straight."

He expressed similar views on Hollywood as Mr. Zuzor. The Universal Company has had "morality" clauses in its contracts since the "Fatty" Arbuckle case. An actor signing a contract with the company agrees not to do anything that would reflect dishonor on himself or the company.

Saturday evening of his week the Tannersville Five will meet the Allaben Five.

JOHNSON'S "BOXING" DIDN'T OFFEND POLICE.

Jack Johnson began his engagement at the Orpheum Theater with a careful regard for the feelings of the Kingston police and didn't do enough boxing to cause them to pounce on the show. What he did was to punch the bag for a brief period, make a short speech chiefly dwelling on his own grievances, and make a few passes at a member of his troupe with the gloves. Altogether he wasn't on the stage over ten minutes.

A curious crowd which had gathered to see him drive up to the theater in his "$7,000 limousine" was disappointd when Jack came rattling up the hill in one of the web-footed Fords which skitter back and forth to Rhinebeck.

The house was crowded at both performances.

NEWARK HACS PLAY ELLENVILLE WANDERERS

The Ellenville Wanderers met defeat last Friday night when they played the North Hudson Professionals at basketball the score being 21 to 19.

The Ellenville Wanderers plays the Newark Hacs this evening.

This is the deciding game of series of three. The Hacs are making another tour of this section and are playing Ellenville, Walton, Roscoe and Catskill. The Hacs are well known in this locality. Cremmens, the star center of the Hacs, formerly played with the Troy "Turners" and Schwankert with the Amsterdam league team.

Leonard Respects Kansas.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 7.—Evidence that Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, does not expect a "set up" in Rocky Kansas, the Buffalo mauler, whom he meets in a 15-round bout to a decision Friday night, was seen today in the manner in which the titleholder is training. Leonard is working hard and faithfully. He has to make 135 pounds at 2 o'clock. He declared today he expected to reach the weight limit easily.

Tracing Origin of Billiards.

Billiards is believed by some to have been brought from the east by the Crusaders, while others claim an English origin for it and find it allied to the game of lawls. Still others assert that the French developed it from an ancient German game. It seems pretty certain that the first person to give form and rule to the game was an artist named Henrique Devigne, who lived in the reign of Charles IX. One writer sees in billiards the ancient game of pallemaille played on a table instead of on the ground, and this is a reasonable assumption.

What Is a Weed?

According to Webster's International dictionary there are two definitions of a weed: 1. Wild growth in the nature of rank grass, undergrowth, or the like. 2. Any plant growing in cultivated ground to the injury of the crop or desired vegetation, or to the disfigurement of the place; an unsightly, useless, or injurious plant. The following note is added: A weed is a plant that is not wanted. There are, therefore, no species of weeds, for a plant that is a weed in one place may not be in another.

To Make Friend of Toad.

The toad is not looked upon with any great amount of favor by the average person, and is generally thought of as being "ugly," while the old boyhood superstition that holds the toad hopper as responsible for warts still lingers in many adult minds. In reality the toad is a peaceful, friendly little creature that can be trained in a very few minutes to be "pals" and after a week or so can be made as affectionate as a dog. They are cleaner than any furred animal and are exceedingly interesting as pets.

And They All Disappear.

The output of the pin factories of Britain amounts to over a million millions of pins a year—a figure which would in ten years cover every town in the kingdom with a layer of pins several inches deep.
